

How do your employees rate your health plan?

GETMOR

New Economic Model of Health Care

Driving New Behavior

Building Employee Allegiance

The extreme cost of providing a competitive health plan to your valued employees today is seriously challenged by declining “benefit satisfaction” levels reported by many employees/families covered under such plans. Employees are alarmed/concerned by the price tag (to them), the lack of real choice, flexibility and the ever changing nature of what is/isn’t covered. As employers we continue to struggle with providing an adequate safety net that is affordable and viable for all parties despite often harsh criticism by its participants.

Until Now...

The GetMOR Plan offers a brilliant method of revitalizing and enriching your current health plan and creating one of much greater value over the short and long-term. This proven benefit/compensation delivery system strengthens and enhances your current health care economics; its employer and employee outcomes are unparalleled. Hence, our name and our commitment, that employees and employers will all “get more” under this model.

Without spending more, the GetMOR Plan promises to:

- + Stabilize the cost of health care and positively redirect the dollars that you are currently spending
- + Restore real and perceived economic value to your employee’s health plan
- + Create greater employee literacy regarding health care spending
- + Offer tremendous financial gain to employees by leveraging their healthy years; allowing for meaningful accumulation opportunities and long-term planning

“Consumerism” is being touted as a means to contain costs and engage employees through high deductibles and the creation of Health Savings Accounts (HSA) or Health Reimbursement Accounts (HRA). Though the advantages are significant to the employer; present consumer plans reflect very poor plan participation and are seriously plagued by employee perceptions of being a cheaper/lesser option. This clearly indicates the dire need for “smarter” design and delivery at all levels.

The careful architecture of this plan is unlike other consumer health plans existing today. A consortium of benefit futurists have designed and developed the GetMOR Plan as a distinctive hybrid model of care that takes full advantage of today’s tax laws and benefit technology. Quite simply, it skillfully combines the art and science of truly benefiting your employees and creating a smarter, more relevant safety net for today and tomorrow.
